CHURCH HITS LIQUOR VOTE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE State Anti-Saloon League, anticipating the legalization of liquor in Arkansas possibly this Saturday, thunders away at Governor Futrell and the General Assembly as "unfaithful" public servants. But the hour is at hand when the league must decide whether it is going to join hands with the administration and the press in an honest attempt to enforce regulation, or go the way of all professional reform lobbies—dissolution against the stone wall of an enlightened public opinion.

Shank Goes to His Death in "Chair" Reviling Arkansas

Ohio Lawyer-Magistrate Blames Fate on "North-South" Feud

SLEW FOUR OHIOANS

Poisoned Colley Family—Crime in Arkansas, Arkansas Executed Him

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark.—(P)—Mark H. Shank, 43, former Ohio magistrate, died in the electric chair at 7:14 a. m. Friday for the poisoning of a family of four in Saline county in August, 1933.

Before 50 persons who jammed the electrocution chamber, Shank maintained to the end the calm and indifference which marked his residence or more than a year in a condemned cell.

He was convicted late in 1933 for the murder of Alvin Colley, a professional associate, who with Mrs. Colley and the two Colley children died after drinking poisoned grape-juice which Shank served them at a picnic luncheon.

Differ at the End

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Mark H. Shank, aroused from lethargy to bitterness, was to die in the electric chair at Tucker prison farm at sunrise Friday morning.

The 40-year-old lawyer from Akron, Ohio, will pay with his life for the murder of four members of the Alvin Colley family in Saline county in the summer of 1933.

Mrs. Geraldine Shank, his wife, could not come to bid her husband farewell. Governor Futrell had promised to hold up the execution until she could reach Arkansas, if she desired to visit the condemned man once more. But he offered no hope for executive clemency, and she decided not to come.

His lawyers gave up when the governor set a new date for execution shortly after habeas corpus proceedings were withdrawn in federal court.

Sudden Transformation

The finality of the proclamation setting an execution date for the fifth time transformed Shank. For 18 months he has displayed no outward interest in his surroundings or in his life.

But since Sept. 3, L. T. Todhunter told him Tuesday night that he had only two more days to live, he has been a different man. He has moved around freely in his cell. He has smoked cigarettes. He talked with a priest. He asked for writing materials, but did not use them.

He talked to a reporter Thursday afternoon. He was shabby, had little composure, but he was dressed neatly in a white shirt, white duck trousers and a dark tie. A sullen silence greeted questions for 20 minutes.

Displays Bitterness

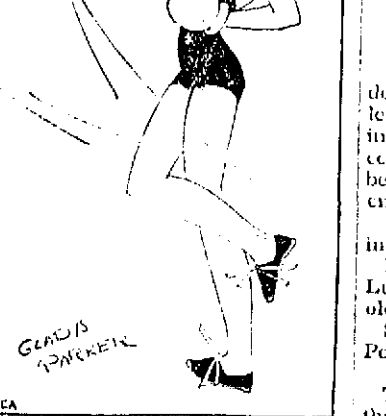

Then he began talking.

"I wasn't going to talk to any one but the priest, but I'm going to tell

Baby Burned to Death at Prescott

8-Month Johnson Infant Perishes in H. Bemis Home

Great-Grandson of Late Governor McRae Victim of Flames

PARENTS, MALVERN Child Son of William Johnson, Editor Meteor-Journal

PRESCOTT, Ark.—(P)—William Rector Johnson, 8-months-old great-grandson of the late Governor Thomas C. McRae, was burned to death here Friday as fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Horace Bemis.

The child was the son of W. R. Johnson, editor of the Meteor-Journal at Malvern.

Three Others Escape

Three other persons, Mrs. Bemis, a son Douglas, and Norwood Smith, the latter of Waterloo, narrowly escaped from the burning building.

Douglas Bemis was burned about the face and arms in a heroic but futile attempt to rescue the trapped child. Dense smoke and flames drove him from the structure when he made a gallant effort to enter the child's room.

The tragic fire, breaking out at 2 a. m., was believed due to defective wiring. The occupants, clad in night clothes, fled to the streets barely in time to escape serious injury or death.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, were at their home in Malvern. The child was being kept by its grandmother, Mrs. Bemis.

The Bemis home was one of the finest and most beautiful in Prescott. It was completely destroyed.

Funeral Friday

Funeral services for little William R. Johnson, Jr., were held at 3 p. m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Thomas C. McRae, Sr. The Rev. Harmon B. Ramsey, pastor of First Presbyterian church of Prescott, conducted the services. Burial was in the Prescott cemetery.

The Prescott Daily News, operated by Archie Johnson, brother of the dead child's father, suspended publication Friday. Operations will be resumed Saturday.

School Census to Be Held in County

Annual Enumeration Will Be Held Here From March 10 to 30

The annual Hempstead county school enumeration will be taken between March 10 and 30, County Examiner E. E. Austin announced Friday.

Supplies to be used in taking the enumeration are being sent to directors of each school district, Mr. Austin said.

The evil that men do lives after them; The good is oft interred with their bones.

Repeal Scores in Texas Legislature

Rider on Repeal Referendum Is Rejected by Lower House

AUSTIN, Texas.—(P)—Advocates of outright repeal of state prohibition won an initial victory in the Texas house Thursday.

The house rejected, 71 to 6, after a fiery debate, a proposal by Representative George Moffett of Chillicothe to submit to the people, along with repeal, a state liquor monopoly plan.

Repeal and a state liquor monopoly likewise engrossed the senate, other business being shunted aside.

Congress Impeding Recovery, Richberg

Richberg Plain-Spoken in Warning to Senate Finance Group

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Warning that delays and uncertainties over NRA legislation were slowing up trade and industry were given the senate finance committee Friday by Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council.

Other capital developments Friday included:

House labor committee approved the Lunden unemployment insurance-old-age-pension bill.

State Police Bill Passes Senate and Goes to Governor

Carries Upper Chamber 24-8, Senator Wilson Voting "No"

"MACHINE" CHARGED State Patrol Organization to Be Headed by Two Executives

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The senate, Friday passed by 24 to 8 Governor Futrell's state police bill.

It met with opposition by Senators Featherston, Wilson, Cardwell, Milum and Livingston, who spoke against the bill contending it would create "another political machine" and would interfere with the duties and rights of sheriffs and other police officers.

The bill, which now goes to the governor, sets up a police commission of three members and a superintendent with $3,000 yearly salary.

The house passed a bill to restore publication of delinquent tax lists, while the senate passed and sent to the governor a house bill, which would provide the means of obtaining valid titles by the state to lands forfeited for taxes.

Bargain Season

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The bargaining season is at its crest in the legislature. The governor stamped his foot, stating his terms under which he would sign the Thorn liquor bill, and got results. Speaker Thorn rushed through the house the governor's liquor law enforcement bill and sent it posthaste to the senate.

He called up the Hall sales tax and got some amendments acted on. He pushed through the companion liquor bill levying an excise tax, amended to strike out the distribution of the revenue.

Experiment Station Bill

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The House of Representatives Friday passed the $45,000 total appropriation bill for the three branch experiment stations. The bill appropriates for their expenses out of the general revenue fund. The house rejected an amendment which would have made the appropriation come out of the University of Arkansas millage fund.

Then he introduced another companion bill putting liquor taxes into an "emergency relief fund."

Now, it will be up to the senate. If that body passes his law enforcement measure, and passes the liquor taxing bills, Governor Futrell will sign the Thorn bill legalizing the sale of liquor.

Not before.

"They tried to bring me the Thorn bill from the unwilling clerks," Governor Futrell said, "and I have to act on it. I told them if they forced it on me, I'd veto it."

"If the senate will pass my enforcement bill, I'll see that bootlegging is 'topped in' Arkansas and that no liquor is sold except legally. I can do it. I'll send investigators into counties where the law is being violated, get the facts and turn them over to the circuit judges."

"If his sheriff won't act—and lots of them refuse to act now—and if the prosecuting attorney won't prosecute, the judge can appoint special officers. Then, if the circuit judge, with this information, doesn't stop violations of the liquor law, I'll call the legislature to impeach him."

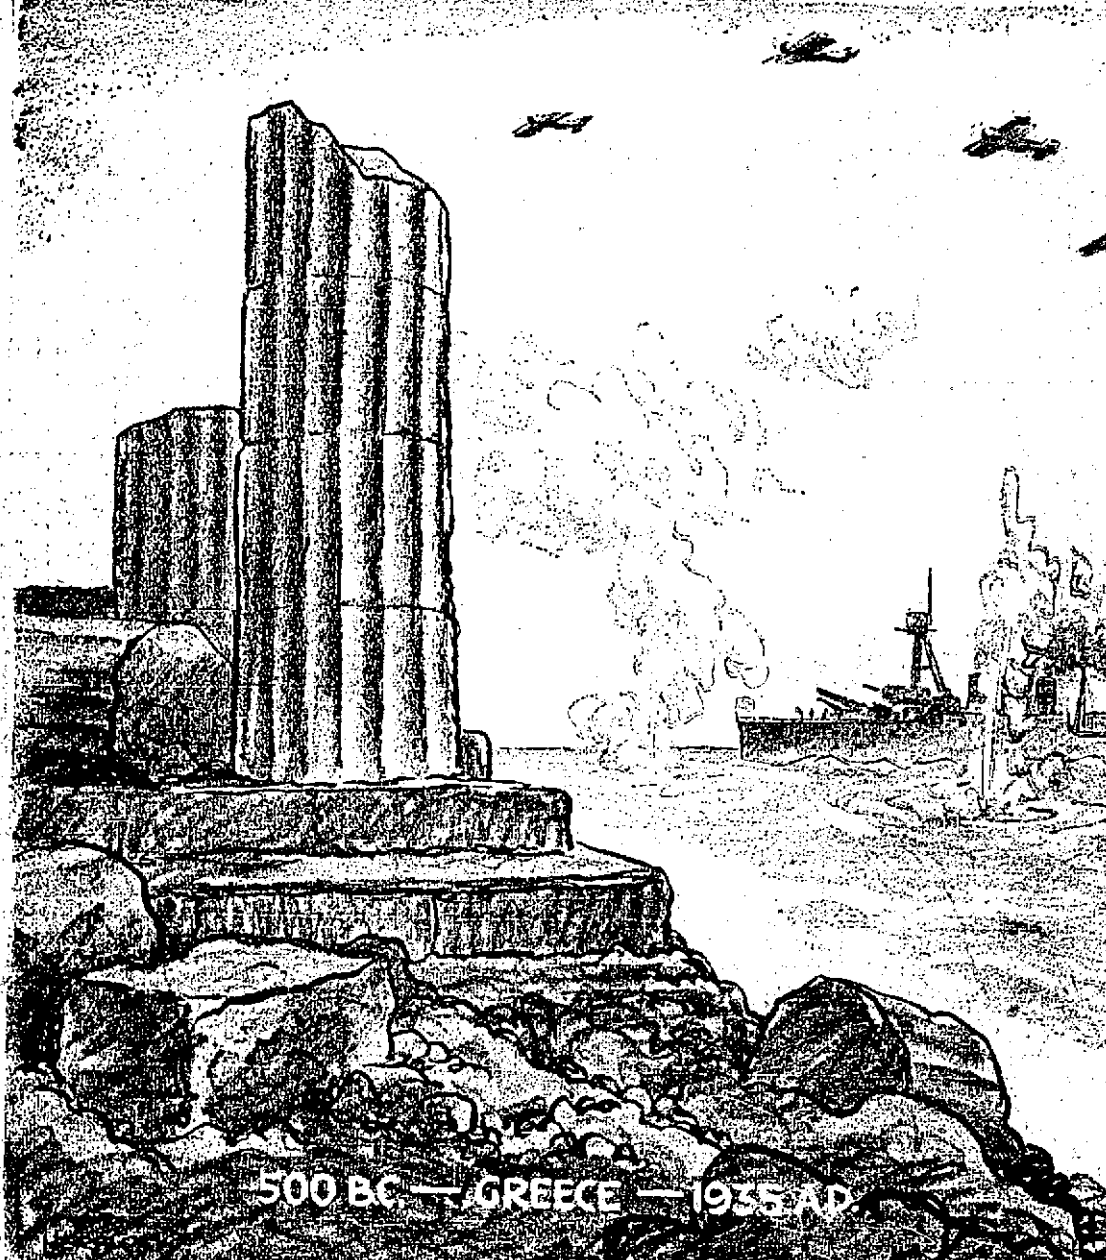

"I won't have to do that more than once. I believe public sentiment will back me up and support the judges under a liquor sale act. It will turn against bootleggers and revenue cheaters."

Liquor For Sales Tax

Meanwhile, over in the senate there is an inclination in some quarters to renew the bargaining, trading liquor votes for sales tax votes, which prevailed when the Thorn bill was passed.

The senate passed Senator Dillon's companion liquor tax bill—identical with Thorn's except for the latter's

The Struggle for Democracy

Boys Band Work Told to Rotarians

L. E. Crumpler, Magnolia Bandmaster, Speaks at Luncheon Meeting

School bands were an outgrowth of the World war and have swept America, L. E. Crumpler, of Magnolia, director of the Hope Boys Band, told Hope Rotary club at its luncheon Friday noon in Hotel Barlow.

The local organization has 31 members, the bandmaster said—and it appeals to parents not only for the musical training it may give a boy or girl, but for the practice in actual co-operation with other youngsters as is required in a successful musical organization.

The Hope group is entered in the state band competition under the classification of "D," which Mr. Crumpler explained is for bands organized less than a year. The Hope band was formed last May. High schools with an enrollment above 400 are classed "A" for band purposes, above 200 class "B," and under 200 class "C."

The work of the local band was illustrated by two brass quartet numbers played by the following Hope boys: David Davis, Roy Lewis, Dolan Cargile, and Nolin Cargile.

Two new Rotarians were introduced by club-President Albert Graves, and given instruction by E. F. McFaddin. They are: J. L. Green, dry cleaner; and Travis Steel, manager of Community Ice & Produce Co.

A guest Friday was Wayne Englund, secretary of the Kiwanis club. George W. Ware, director of the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station, was welcomed back to the club after a leave of absence during the winter when he attended Cornell university on special work.

Play to Be Repeated at Patmos Saturday

Due to many requests by those unable to attend the first presentation when the weather was bad, the play "Womanless Wedding" will be repeated at Patmos school Saturday night, March 9, the Patmos P. T. A. announced Friday. The play will be given in the high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock, with a cast assembled from the male members of the P. T. A. Proceeds will complete payment of a school lighting plant, recently purchased.

Game authorities say there are 73 distinct species of hawks in the United States.

Inquest Held by Justice Beauchamp in Strychnine Poisoning

Thomas A. (Gus) Foster, 64, formerly of Hope, committed suicide at the home of a sister in Blevins early this week, it was learned here Friday.

Justice of the Peace I. H. Beauchamp conducted an inquest, holding that Foster came to his death last Tuesday by swallowing strychnine. He left no notes. Ill health was blamed for his act.

Foster operated a grocery store in Hope for a number of years, moving to Blevins about three years ago. Funeral and burial services were held at Washington.

Surviving are his widow, a sister, Mrs. Wright of Blevins, and a brother, J. J. Foster, also of Blevins.

Before joining the lumber company, Mr. Boyett sold his interest in the gasoline business to H. G. Summer-

Cold Wave Is Duds and Crops Escape

Mercury Drops Only to 39, Against Forecast of 22 to 28

Fruit and early truck crops in this area again escaped a threatened cold wave which failed to materialize Thursday night.

The forecast was for temperatures ranging from 22 to 28 degrees. The actual low, however, was 39, the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station reported Friday.

No damage to fruit or early crops was reported. The forecast for South-west Arkansas Friday night was for warm and cloudy weather, with rain in this area Saturday.

Visiting Day at Experiment Farm

Spring Program Arranged for Local Station Friday, March 22

The annual spring visiting day will be held at the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station, Friday, March 22, according to an announcement by G. W. Ware, assistant director, in charge.

A useful and timely program has been arranged. Special emphasis will be placed on food and feed arranged crops, and farm and home improvements. Beginning at 10 o'clock, visitors will ride through the station farm and inspect the many experiments with fruit, truck and field crops. Special demonstrations will be given in growing plants, establishing pastures, cover crops, pruning and spraying, fruit trees, grape pruning and propagation, terracing, basket weaving and rug making, home mixing of fertilizers and landscaping the home.

A recreational program will be conducted during the noon hour, including musical novelties, and a log sawing contest. Prizes will be awarded the log sawing contestants, and the champion south-west Arkansas team will be determined from the various entries throughout the section.

Miss Connie J. Bonnel, state home demonstration agent, and J. L. Wright, extension district agent, will make short talks on the general program in the afternoon. A special women's program will be given.

PLAN REFERENDUM

Anti-Saloon League Denounces 'Unfaithful Governor, Legislature'

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—A difference developed in the Inman Baptist congregation here Friday over the vote by which the members decided to exclude from the church State Representative V. N. Carter after he had cast the deciding vote in the house for prohibition repeal.

Simultaneously, members of the house rose to Carter's defense, Crawford of Union county introducing a resolution expressing "faith in the honesty, sincerity and Christianity of Carter."

Carter, however, asked for and secured the withdrawal of the resolution.

O. L. Hemphill, Jr., fellow church member, Friday disclosed a movement for the legislator's reinstatement in the congregation.

Governor Denounced

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—With a statement calling on Arkansas citizens "to rise in their civic might and destroy the work of our unfaithful governor and legislature," the executive board of the State Anti-Saloon League Friday laid plans for seeking repeal of liquor legalization if Governor Futrell signs the prohibition repealer which was passed early this week by the General Assembly.

The governor has indicated he will sign the bill possibly Saturday. Meeting in annual session Friday the board favored a referendum movement for submitting the question of liquor legalization to the general election of 1936.

Delay Referendum

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Submission at the November (1936) general election of an initiated bill for repeal of liquor laws passed by the present General Assembly was advocated, in preference to an immediate referendum, by the Arkansas Anti-Saloon League board which met Thursday at the Little Rock Y. M. C. A.

The board, which held its annual session, issued a formal statement of its position, in which it set forth arguments for waiting until 1936 before seeking a vote on the new legislation.

The newly organized Citizens Protective League until in Pulaski county decided Tuesday night to take steps for a liquor law referendum, but R. H. Green, president of the unit, said no definite plans had been made. Leaders of the organization would meet soon to discuss the matter, he said.

Amusement Expressed

Expressing amazement "at the leadership of our governor and the acts of our legislature," the Anti-Saloon League board said that ministers and other good citizens "have been charged with failure to improve conditions, while the officials themselves, having taken a solemn oath to enforce the law, have childishly confessed themselves helpless, and have finally given the lawless elements the very things which they have desired."

The board recalled that before state-wide prohibition, it was possible for counties and wards "to vote out saloons and native wine, and a majority

Lower Brackets Pay Smaller Tax

But U. S. Tax Rate on Larger Incomes Is Much Larger

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
 WASHINGTON. (AP)—With lower taxes on small incomes and higher on large incomes and on estates, the 1935 battle with income returns is getting into full swing throughout the country.

Internal revenue officials say that thousands of taxpayers unfamiliar with the provisions of the revenue act passed by congress last spring, are expressing surprise that their taxes are lower than they were a year ago. Many are under the impression that they have made errors in computing their tax.

A major factor in the reduced levy on the small wage earner is the new allowance of 10 per cent credit on earned net income up to $14,000, with the provision that all income up to $3,000 be considered as "earned." An-

Income Tax In Brief

Who? Single persons with net incomes of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more and married couples, with net incomes of $2,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, must file returns.

When? Filing period which began January 1 will end at midnight on March 15, 1935.

Where? Returns should be filed with collector of internal revenue district in which taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business.

How? Read instruction on forms on which returns are to be filed.

What? Four per cent normal tax on the amount of net income in excess of personal exemptions, credit for dependents, carried income credit, dividends of domestic corporations subject to taxation, and interest on obligations of the United States.

other sizeable reduction is brought about by the substitution of a 4 per cent normal rate on all income as compared with the previous 4 per cent for the first $4,000 and 8 per cent for all income above $4,000.

Big Income Levy Increased

Levies on big incomes are increased by larger surtaxes in the higher brackets and by the imposition of the surtax on "surplus net incomes" in excess of $4,000.

Despite the surtax increase, the married taxpayer with a net earned income up to and including $25,000 will pay less this year than he did in 1934.

For example, the married man with no dependents and having net income of $3,000 will pay a tax of $8 this year or less than one-half as much. It is computed in this way: A 10 per cent allowance for earned income amounts to $300, which deducted from $3,000 leaves $2,700. Subtraction of the $2,500 exemption for married persons leaves a taxable income of $200, and 4 per cent of that amount is $8.

The married man with no dependents and a net earned income of $5,000 will pay a tax of $80 as compared with $100 a year ago. The man in the same status with an earned income of $25,000 pays $2,480 as compared with $2,520 in 1934.

Persons with earned incomes above $25,000 will pay a higher tax than they did last year although the increase is not relatively large.

The 10 per cent credit applies only to earned income, no allowance being granted for revenues derived from investments of various kinds.

Filing Returns Required

Even if allowable deductions and exemptions remove a person from tax-paying liability, the filing of returns is required of every single person who in 1934 had a net income of $1,000 or more or a gross income of $5,000, and income of $2,500 or more or a gross income of married couples who had a net income of $5,000 or more.

The period for filing returns, which began on January 1, ends at midnight on Friday, March 15. Failure to receive a form does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file and pay the tax on time.

Decreases Shown

The table below shows comparative tax liability under new and old laws, of married man with no dependents, the decrease being due chiefly to 10 per cent credit on earned income and elimination of 8 per cent normal tax on income in excess of $4,000.

Earned Income	Tax Due This Year	Tax Last Year
$3,000	$8	$20
3,500	26	40
5,000	80	100
7,500	210	255
10,000	415	480
15,000	924	1,020
25,000	$2,389	$2,520

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Good Beauty Spot Is Kept In Its Place.

"Thou shalt find thy happiness on earth through prayer, love and perfume," says the Koran.

To these philosophical words from the East, modern women have added permanent waves, cosmetics, red fingernails to match toenails and various creams and lotions.

Especially is this true as far as stage and screen stars are concerned. Most of them admit that they owe a good portion of their loveliness to an expert knowledge of beauty aids than to nature. They are in a business where beauty is essential and they are willing to devote a good deal of time to maintaining it.

Harriet Hillard, whose lulling voice and good looks thrill New York dinner guests, combines natural beauty with an expert knowledge of the art of glorifying yourself. The result makes one remember her golden blond hair and the sparkling periwinkle blue eyes long after she has stopped singing.

Miss Hillard has a unique method of determining exactly where her rouge should go. When she is ready to make up, she presses a hot towel against her face, removes it and then applies an ice cold one. This simple procedure causes the blood to rush to her cheeks. She dries her face, smooths on foundation lotion, and then blends rouge on the spots where the natural color shows. As a result, her artificially-colored cheeks always look natural.

For daytime, the little singer uses bright lipstick with a slightly yellowish cast and a sparing amount of mascara on her lashes. In the evening, she wears darker lipstick with a bluish tint, blue eyeshadow and a heavier coat of mascara. She always puts a touch of cream on her upper lids to

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Overweight Up to 30, Underweight Beyond.

Most of us estimate our weight according to the usual height, weight and age tables issued by various organizations. These tables are calculated for persons of average build.

Unfortunately, there are not many persons of average build. There are far more of unusual build.

However, doctors who give particular attention to these questions of weight realize that a person is usually a little safer from the point of view of health if he is slightly overweight under the age of 30, and slightly underweight after that age.

If you really are overweight and past middle age, there are good reasons why you should do something to bring down your weight. Every pound of extra tissue means extra work for the heart.

"If there is excess fat in the body, this fat may actually get into the heart muscle and weaken it. Moreover, fat people are more likely to get gallbladder diseases and diabetes than are thin people."

A very small percentage of people are definitely overweight because of some peculiar action of their glands. These, however, represent the smallest percentage.

The gland usually involved is the thyroid gland, of which the secretion is closely associated with the rate at which the body burns up food to produce energy.

Efficiency of the thyroid gland is determined by measuring the basal metabolism. If a person is found to have a thyroid gland that is acting inefficiently, extra thyroid material can be given.

There are two ways of reducing weight. One is to increase the amount of energy used, and the other to reduce the amount of fuel.

There are various ways of increasing the energy burned up. Exercise is one way.

Unfortunately, it is hard to get people to take enough exercise to burn up much fuel. Moreover, we are so constituted that slight amounts of exercise increase our appetites and cause us to eat more than we would ordinarily.

There are certain drugs which may be taken to speed up the consumption of fuel. For example, extracts of the thyroid gland and dinitrophenol. All these are dangerous and should never be taken except under careful supervision of a doctor.

The best way to reduce is to cut down the diet. In doing this, fads of all kinds should be avoided.

Such dietary notions as the lamb chop and pineapple diets, the tomato and cottage cheese diets, and the 18-day diet are pernicious. They will cause a reduction in weight if adhered to, but few people follow them for very long.

Moreover, it is difficult in most such restricted diets to get the necessary elements for health.

In "The Popular Practice of Fraud," the outspoken T. Having done that, he turns on the "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs" school of and announces that they are harming their cause by making extravagant and unwarranted statements.

The Tugwell bill became the Cope-land bill, at the last session of Congress through a process of compromise. The authors of the above-mentioned book, and other liberal spokesmen, have declared that this change emasculated the bill and made it nearly worthless. Mr. Harding disagrees violently.

On the contrary, he says the Copeland bill represents an im measurable advance over present legislation. Those who criticize it and demand the original Tugwell bill or nothing, he asserts, are helping to deny the consumer the protection to which he is entitled.

For the rest, Mr. Harding goes into the deceptions which are to be found in the field of proprietary medicines, cosmetics, foods and the like, and writes a spirited and revealing book which has a great deal in common with the works which the author attacks.

Published by Longmans, Green and Co., it sells for $2.50.

Already scientists are training their lenses on the five Dionne babies. Biologists, behaviorists, psychologists, sociologists and astrologers, each with a theory to prove, have never before had access to five babies all born at once of the same parents to provide comparative data.

Their experiences will be similar, if not identical. And this fact in itself adds price to the data scientists will adduce.

Those who believe heredity is dominant will win if Marie develops great-grandma's aversion to red, or Emelie shows unmistakable signs of granddaddy's obsession for diving, atavistic or latent through two generations—or if Cecile is peculiarly nervous about certain sounds, just as grandma was. Annette, perhaps, has a miracle memory like great-uncle Pierre or Gaston and Yvonne a penchant for strawberries and pop like her parents and Grandpa Olivier.

Conditioning vs. Heredity

Most exponents of environment claim that each new baby is a blank sheet of paper on which only experience can write its words; that each one of us is a pure result of our own lives and what has filled the years.

Here "conditioning" is a big word. The child is unconsciously influenced by its elders. "What is mistaken for heredity," so say the extremists, "is actually some other force at work, a force even unsuspected by parents themselves at times."

Already Marie has developed curiosity and courage. She seems bound and determined to investigate the world, even at the expense of her sisters. She crawls over Emelie's tumblers, plants affon in Annette's eye and uses Yvonne as tackle.

Does this mean that her reaction to life is aggressive? That she fits into the "extrovert" type of humans? That she will be a rough-and-ready go-getter who has no time to feel sorry for herself ever, and will be less sensitive than the others?

Little Yvonne is quiet but merry. As far as one can judge at present she will be the wistful or appealing type, placing her personality behind others, becoming more sensitive and emotional as time passes and classing herself with the "introverts" who usually have a hard time of it.

May Turn Out Different

Things may be reversed. Marie and Yvonne may baffle these early observations of ours. It is merely hypothesis. All the little girls may be either extreme or the other, or, most possibly, a happy normal between the two.

As their environment and handling has been identical and will continue to be so far a time, this individual growth will be of interest to the enemies of heredity who maintain that every one adopts his social attitude after birth. If the Dionne babies develop similar natures it helps to prove their point. If, on the other hand, they show inherent differences of temperament and a wide range in mental power, it will help to refute their contention that heredity is nonsense.

The world is watching. Science is waiting. The five-pointed star of Calender is a miracle that seemed to wait for the present living hour, potential with every device for weighing God's work against man's, of nature against the human laboratory.

Slit Down

A teacher asked the class to name the states of the United States. One child responded so promptly and accurately as to bring forth this comment from the teacher: "You did very well—much better than I could have done at your age."

"Yes you could," said the child consolingly, "there were only thirteen then."—Answers (London).

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lee Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 15-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She delays giving the answer. Meanwhile, she meets BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, a street fight, she meets. Brian, now dead, built the mill. Brian is much attracted to Gale but, through the treachery of VICKY THATCHER, sister beauty, Gale concludes Brian's intentions are insincere.

Vicky, whose father, ROBERT THATCHER, is general manager of the mill, is endeavoring to win Brian for herself.

PHIL loses his job. He is arrested, accused of shooting ED VOGEL, another mill employee. A street fight, Gale, frightened and distraught, waits for Steve to come with news. There is a knock at the door and the rushes to open it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV

BRIAN WESTMORE said, "May I come in? I'd like to talk to you for a few moments."

He stood in the doorway, almost filling it. He looked very tall and very handsome—his face a trifle paler than Gale remembered it. Or perhaps that was only the effect of the darkness. Gale, who had been sure it was Steve when she heard the knock on the door, still showed her surprise. She said, "Why, yes. Come in."

Brian crossed the threshold. He stood in the shabbily furnished living room with its table lamp casting an arc of yellow radiance on the faded rug and he looked slightly ill at ease.

"You said you wanted to see me," Gale prompted.

"Yes—yes, I did."

Still he hesitated. Gale, remembering her manners, added, "Won't you sit down?"

Brian dropped to the nearest chair. "I didn't hear until a few hours ago," he went on, "about the trouble last night. I mean the trouble your brother's in. I came because I thought there might be something I could do. If there is I'll be awfully glad to do it."

"Thank you," Gale's eyes met his squarely. "But there isn't any thing."

"I'm sorry. I was hoping—"

"There isn't anything," Gale repeated. "Phil has to stay—where he is for a while. There's nothing anyone can do about it."

"You've employed a lawyer?"

"Not yet."

"But you should! That's the very first thing you should do."

"I know," Gale told him. "We're trying to get one, but lawyers don't seem to want clients who haven't any money—at least the ones we've tried so far."

"But I know plenty of lawyers. I'll get one for you."

GALE shook her head. "No thank you," she said. "Phil wouldn't want you to do that—and neither would I."

"See here!" Brian leaned forward, emphasizing the words. "Your brother's in a bad spot, don't you realize that? This thing is liable to become serious. I don't want to frighten you, but if Vogel should die—"

Gale got to her feet. "I know,"

she said. "If Vogel dies Phil will be tried—for murder. And he's innocent. He didn't have any more to do with that shooting than you or I. The men who say he did are simply lying, that's all. They tried to frame Phil. They think they can do it, but they can't. I'll work—I'll do anything to save him!"

"But you can't do it alone. You've got to have help. You'll need a smart lawyer—one of the best. Let me get—"

Gale interrupted sharply. "No," she said. "There's nothing you can do, Mr. Westmore, for Phil—or for me."

"You mean that?"

"I certainly do."

Brian's eyes sought hers, held them. A moment more and he rose to his feet. "Well," he said slowly, "if that's the way you feel about it, I guess there's nothing more to say. Unless you change your mind, if you should—"

"I won't change it," Gale told him. Her cheeks were colorless but her eyes seemed unnaturally bright.

"Just the same, if you should I'll be glad to hear from you." He was at the door now, his hand on the knob. "I'll be glad to hear from you," he repeated, "in case you change your mind. Good night."

Gale closed the door and turned away.

TWENTY-FOUR hours can seem an endless time. Gale thought this, walking along the street beside Steve. It had been 24 hours—even a little more than that—since she had seen her brother.

Twenty-four hours of hoping, waiting. Twenty-four hours of telling herself that somehow things would be all right, that none of the dreadful things she had imagined were going to happen.

She hadn't wanted to come out tonight, but Steve had insisted. They were on their way to "the meeting."

Steve had said, "It's better for you to get out and see people than to stay cooped up at home."

"But I don't want to see people!"

"It's better for you," Steve insisted. "Besides, Phil would want you to."

Gale knew that was true. That was why she had decided to come, finally.

A Thought For the Day

We never outdistance a deed;
We may try every possible plan
To do it and leave it behind,
But the deed waits ahead for the man.—Selected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Strickland are spending the next ten days looking after business interests in Thibodaux, La.

Miss Helen Bowden left Thursday for Tyler, Texas, where she will enter Tyler Commercial College.

Miss Mollie Hatch is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Goodlett in Ozon.

Thursday March 7, 1935 marked the 30th anniversary of the organization of the Pat Cleburne chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Pat Cleburne chapter was organized in this city, March 7, 1895 by the late Mrs. C. A. Forney-Smith, the first chapter organized in the state and the first chapter organized west of the Mississippi river.

It is rightly called the "Mother of U. D. C. in Arkansas." During the past 39 years the Pat Cleburne chapter has grown from seven members to a present membership of fifty.

The Pat Cleburne chapter also has at this time the distinction of having one of their members, Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, president of the state division.

On Thursday afternoon, the chapter celebrated their birthday anniversary at the home of Mrs. W. W. Duckett on South Elm street.

Guests with Mrs. E. S. Greenline, Mrs. A. F. Helman, Miss Maggie Bell and Miss Zenobia Reed, associate hostesses. For the occasion the spacious reception suite of the Duckett home was abloom with lovely spring flowers and potted plants, with an arrangement of chairs for seating the chapter and a large number of guests.

One room was entirely filled with an unusually attractive and interesting display of relics and antiques, and interesting pictures and personal belongings of the late Mrs. Forney-Smith. Outstanding in this display was a beautiful pot of blooming flowers, given in her memory of the "chapter mother" by Mrs. S. L. Reed. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Willour Jones and following the ritual and chapter business, Mrs. C. A. Bridwell and Mrs. Hattie Penny were introduced as charter members of the chapter, having been among the original seven required for the organization.

Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp presented these honor guests with beautiful corsages, and expressed the pleasure of the chapter for the honor of their presence. The regular routine of business was dispatched after which Mrs. Jones introduced Mrs. R. T. White the program chairman. Mrs. White, sponsor for the Clara Lowthorp C. C. chapter, announced that her assistant, Mrs. Martin Green would present a pageant, entitled the heroines of the 60's. These heroines were announced by Miss Leona Routon and to the strains of old familiar songs, with Mrs. Farren Green at the piano, the noted women represented by Misses Wanda Keith, Martha Houston, Margaret Simms, Claudia Whitworth, Mary Cox, Melba Holloway, Daisy Dorothy Heard, Kathryn Lane, Mary Evelyn Whitworth, Frances Yocom, Dorothy Gunter, Martha Eleanor Blackard, Audrey McAdams, attired in costumes of the 60's marched in making an unusually attractive picture. After they had all assembled, led by Mrs. White they joined in the singing of "Dixie." Following the presentation of the guests, the guests were invited into the dining room where Miss Maggie Bell and Mrs. J. T. Hicks presided at a large covered table, centered with a high bowl of jonquils and ferns, with the chapter flags adorning the top, white lighted signs in crystal holders tied with green tulle were placed at the corners. Assisting the hostesses in the courtesies in the dining room were Mrs. John P. Cox, Mrs. E. S. Richards, Mrs. J. F. Gorin and Mrs. Sid Henry. Guests for the afternoon were the honor guests, Mrs. C. A. Bridwell, Mrs. Hattie Penny, Mrs. J. J. Battle, Mrs. Ernest Cox of Fulton, Miss Maude Winn of Ashdown, Miss Elizabeth Hannah of Ozon, Mrs. John P. Cox.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson
Text: Acts 10:34-48.
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 10.
By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The titles of this lesson are interesting and significant. The general title, "Peter Preaches to Gentiles," based upon the text of the lesson, is changed for titles based more upon its application in its reference to intermediate and senior groups, and to young people and adults.

"The Gospel for All," and the topic for young people and adults is "Overcoming Racial and National Prejudices."

The truth that God is no respecter of persons would seem to be written all over the New Testament and to be inherent in the gospel of grace that Jesus gave to men.

To believe that God is a being who is arbitrary in his judgments, whose grace is moved with considerations of preference for a man of one color above another, or for a man of one race or nationality the way race or nation above another, would be to destroy the greatness of God and make him a creature of biases and prejudices.

The impartiality of God's judgments is a condition of the integrity and righteousness of his judgments.

Yet even among religious people few prejudices are harder to overcome than the prejudices of color, race, and national allegiance. Peter was no exception.

Despite the fact that he had left all things to follow Jesus and was concerned about the salvation of men, the instinctive or developed prejudices of Peter's religious training and environment came immediately into prominence as soon as there was a question of testing.

He was accustomed to think of Jews as a preferred and chosen people who had sort of monopoly in religious privilege and truth.

When he found the gospel having the same effect upon Gentiles that it had upon Jews, and Gentiles becoming interested in the power of the gospel, he was frankly embarrassed. He did not know what to make of it.

It required a vision from heaven with great clearness of application to shake Peter out of his prejudices; and he was compelled to recognize that what God had cleansed was neither common nor unclean.

The one fine thing about Peter was that once he really perceived a thing, he was very bold and decisive in acknowledging it.

His vision might become again shadowed or confused, and he might lapse from his high moments, but his impulsive nature led him to frank avowal of his own narrowness and his own error when he perceived a larger and nobler way.

It was the experience of large contacts and larger outlook in religion that changed Peter. That after all, the way in which men meet people or changed. We find it easy to be nat-

Texarkana Loses Out in Tournament

Pine Bluff and Little Rock Advance in Play at Harrison

HARRISON, Ark.—(AP)—Pine Bluff and Little Rock, a pair of pre-tournament favorites, Thursday night advanced into the second round of the annual state high school basketball tournament as competitors got away in the battle for the Arkansas championship.

The Zebras, winners of the state title for the past two years, did not have to don their suits to advance in the play, receiving a 1 to 0 forfeit when Branch, of District 12, failed to put in an appearance.

Texarkana, champions of District 10, pushed the Little Rock Tigers before dropping a 37 to 22 decision.

McNeill, a Columbia county team, defeated Hickory Ridge, 30 to 29, in a hard-fought game Thursday night.

The initial session got away to a flying start as the Beebe Badgers trounced Salem, 41 to 19.

Thursday night's victory sent the Little Rock team into the second round to meet Coal Hill, champions of District 11, while Pine Bluff takes on Russellville, another District 11 entry, in its second round engagement.

These games will be played Friday. Beebe meets Warren in the Badgers second session contest.

First round competition will continue Friday morning with Marianna taking on Harrison at 8 a. m. Fort Smith will square off with New Edinburg at 9 a. m. and will be followed by the Greenbush-North Little Rock contest at 10. The Russellville-Pine Bluff game is scheduled for 11, and the morning session will come to a close with Okolona vs. McNeill.

row and prejudiced because our religious experience is so small.

When Peter found that Cornelius and other Gentiles could have the same sort of experience in religion that he had himself, he was forced to realize that the gospel was something larger and deeper than he had conceived it to be.

If we meet our fellowmen sympathetically and on a wide range, the one surprising thing will be the discovery how much of noble character, rich experience, and fine attitude and outlook are found in men and women of all races and colors and nations.

It is through the discovery of this, and through the sharing everywhere in the world of the things that are fine and true, that we must hope for progress in the battering down of the barriers of hate and prejudices and misunderstanding.

The essence of the gospel, if men would preach it and live it, is this attitude of heart and life that is in harmony with the grace of God, and that is as impartial and all-reaching in its manifestations as the love of God.

Our first service will be Sunday, March 10. Morning service 11 o'clock; evening service 7:30. The public is cordially invited.

Wallace Favors Farm Buying Plan

Should Give Tenants Stake in Social System," He Declares

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Visioning the possible solution of one of his most perplexing problems, Secretary Wallace Tuesday gave his unqualified endorsement to a proposal to lend $1,000,000 to tenant farmers with which to buy land.

At the same time the Farm Credit Administration reported that the number of farmers threatened with foreclosure in the last half of 1934 was only about one-third of those in distress in the first six months of the year.

Testifying before a sub-committee of the Senate Agricultural Committee, Wallace declared the proposal by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, for tenant aid "should be a substantial aid to the national recovery program, reduce materially the relief burden rural areas and bring great benefits thousands of tenant farmers who are in pitiful economic condition and seek the deterioration of our rural civilization."

The Bankhead measure would set up a government corporation which could have the power to issue $1,000,000 in bonds to provide the funds for purchase of land for farmers and for the purchase of farm machinery.

"The present conditions, particularly in the South, provide fertile soil for communist and socialist agitators," Wallace said. "I do not like the bill, but I realize that the cure is not violence or repressive legislation to curb these activities but rather to give these dispossessed people a stake in the social system."

The American way to preserve the traditional order is to provide these refugees of the economic system with an opportunity to build and develop their own homes and to live on the land which they may call their own and on which they can make a modest living year after year.

The Credit Administration said requests for aid in refinancing farm mortgages dropped from 22,067 during the first half of 1934 to 8,314 during the latter half of the year.

Angry Kentuckians Ante Up Sales Tax

3% Tax Paid by Consumers as Kentucky Balances Its Budget

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(NEA)—"One dollar and three rubles, please!" The visitor to Kentucky's metropolis gazes in astonishment at the salesman. For the Visitor has just bought three pairs of socks for a dollar. And he doesn't see why precious stones should figure in the price.

Grimly the clerk explains that Kentucky is one of the two dozen states that have a sales tax, and that pennies in the Bluegrass State are now called "rubies" after Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

Some states have accepted the sales tax resignedly, but here it has been more cursed and discussed than anywhere since the last attempt to ban horse racing. In fact, indignant sales-tax payers hanged in effigy one state legislator who voted for the tax.

The state government needed money badly. The railways, coal mines, and utilities managed to fight off further increases in their taxes. Legislators from farm counties were brought into line because they were told such a sales tax would save them from additional taxes on their farms.

Collected by Sheriffs
Kentucky has 120 counties. Each county has a sheriff. Each sheriff is the agent through whom the commonwealth collects state taxes. Each sheriff is also a considerable political force in his county, be he Democrat or Republican.

Now in some of the poor counties the sheriff draws very low pay. It is different in the rich counties, where the sheriff can easily draw down the $5000 limit allowed by state law. The sheriffs of the poor counties were made boosters for the sales tax by a provision that they should be allowed 2 per cent of the total sales taxes collected, provided that no sheriff should receive less than $1000 a year from this source, nor more than $2000. To many of them this assured minimum of $1000 looked like a fortune.

Road Fund Another Lure
Another element of support was gained by a clever allocation of the funds thus gathered. Two-thirds of the taxes go to the state's general expenditure fund and one-third to the county road fund. Of the funds allocated to the road fund, one-third is distributed equally to all the 120 counties; one-third goes to them on the basis of population and one-third on the basis of area.

This means that the people of the larger cities of Louisville, Lexington, Newport, Covington and Paducah will be paying for roads in the poor mountain counties.

Despite vigorous opposition by part of the metropolitan press and by the retail merchants, it went over with a bang.

Paid by Customer
Under this an excise tax of 3 per cent is imposed on every merchant selling goods at retail, but tax is collected from the customer. The tax also applies to theater and movie tickets and to the receipts of electric, gas, water, telephone and telephone companies.

It is applied on every retail sale of 10 cents or over. As the minimum tax collected is one cent, it means that the purchaser of a dime's worth of goods pays not 3 per cent, but 10 per cent.

Customers in the five and ten-cent stores soon found themselves paying through the nose. So, proprietors were forced to issue slips, allowing the dime purchaser who has paid one cent tax, credit for that tax on future purchases.

Burden on Poor
The tax has not only already proved a real burden and nuisance to the poor, but has become a political issue and threatens to become the source of many lawsuits.

Symptomatic of what is brewing in the state is the action of some of the citizens in one county whose representative was asserted to have been elected on a pledge to oppose sales tax, and then voted for it. He was hanged in effigy. A placard attached to the figure read:

"You were traitorous to the interests of the people of your county. You have offered no defense and the court of judgment of the people of this county finds you guilty of disloyalty and sentences you to be hanged in effigy until your political life in this county and state is dead. May God have mercy on your soul."

'S Truth
A negro was endeavoring to make clear to a friend just what constitutes oratory. "I will elucidate," he said. "If you say black on white, dat am foolish. But if you says black am white an' bellers like a bull, an' pounds de table with both fists, dat am oratory!"—Montreal Star.

states. He has failed dismally in others.

Typical of what has happened in the latter is what happened in Tennessee—one of various stories which gives some of us non-politicos the jitters, now that all those billions are to be spent just before and during a national election year.

Refuses to Play Politics
Col. Walter L. Simpson was made director of relief in Tennessee at a time when relief affairs there needed reorganizing. No one says he didn't do an excellent job.

Last fall politicians besought him to put his relief crews in the campaign. He was asked to follow the good old Tennessee custom by pouring relief funds into certain key counties to help the machine.

Simpson refused to aid either the Democratic ticket of Senator Kenneth McKellar, Senator Kenneth Bachman, and Gov. Hill McAlister or the fusion ticket of their opponents.

Instead, he repeatedly threatened to fire any of his people who engaged in politics.

That refusal sealed his doom.

Target of Both Sides
While fusionists were shouting that they had been defeated by Simpson's efforts, McKellar and Bachman—vicious—came here to complain that Simpson had worked against them.

Hopkins told them Simpson was a gubernatorial appointee and could be fired only by McAlister.

McAlister passed the buck back to Washington and demanded formal confirmation of his authority to fire Simpson and appoint Judge Barton Brown, a political-minded follower.

He got it and Brown was appointed. Simpson refused to quit, insisting he had been appointed by FERA officials in Washington and would have to be relieved by them.

Hopkins wired Simpson that he thought his resignation would be "to the interest of relief work in Tennessee."

The politicians wiped the blood from their ax, happy to have made a

Insulted by Trade Tale
Meanwhile, McKellar—famous here as a sportsman—had been junketing in the Philippines and arrived back in New York to tell reporters that the four billion dollar work relief bill shouldn't be passed without some new taxation.

The senate committee considering the bill was almost evenly divided on various amendments strongly opposed by the administration. McKellar swung in behind the administration at just about the time Simpson was being eased out by Hopkins and McAlister.

Both the FERA and McKellar became furiously indignant at reports that McKellar agreed to support the bill in exchange for Simpson's dismissal.

German Snub Ends British Peace Plan

Hitler Refuses to Meet Sir John Simon—May "Go It Alone"

Copyright Associated Press

BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—A "slight" Adolf Hitler developed after publication of the British white paper criticizing German rearmament Tuesday caused him to postpone—perhaps forever—the visit of British statesmen in the interests of European peace and unity.

It split German public opinion sharply into two sections. One section charged that der fuhrer, in suddenly postponing his conference with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, set for Thursday, may have lost an historic opportunity for ensuring world co-operation.

The other section, which included Hitler's most ardent adherents, took the view that the new Germany, as personified in Hitler, once again showed the world that it won't stand for any belittling.

Diplomatic circles, taking the first attitude, asserted Hitler's almost unswerving action had created an entirely new situation in Europe and perhaps meant the death of the Anglo-French hopes for an inclusive European security agreement.

you a few things. The whole trouble is everything in this country is on the wrong side of the fence. I'm on the right side.

"The trouble with 99 per cent of the people here is that you still got it in your blood. You remember, we came down South years ago and whipped the hell out of you and you've never gotten over it.

"And another thing. You remember I could not eat for three months, due to a stomach ailment. It was published that I was being kept alive with orange juice. I never got a drop of that juice."

Most of Shank's talk was rambling. During his statement he repeatedly placed both hands to his head and apparently went into deep thought over his next mention the poisoning of the Colley family nor did he talk about his impending fate.

Asked whether he had written farewell messages to relatives and friends, Shank replied in the negative. He also said he had not made up his mind to write.

Arkansan Is Held in 'Diploma Mill'

Dr. C. E. Laws, Fort Smith, Arrested by U. S. for Alleged Mail Fraud

LITTLE ROCK—Arrest of Dr. Claude E. Laws, former secretary of the Arkansas State Electric Board at Fort Smith Thursday, was revealed from St. Louis Thursday. News of his arrest had been suppressed in Fort Smith.

Dr. Laws was arrested as the result of an indictment returned by a federal grand jury in St. Louis, charging him, as well as seven others, with misuse of the mails in a conspiracy to defraud by traffic in faked medical and chiropractic diplomas and licenses.

Dr. Laws was released from custody when he posted $10,000 bond with federal authorities. He was arrested by Postal Inspector O. C. R. Willard of St. Louis and Theo. Burns, deputy United States marshal.

He served as a member of the State Electric Board for several years and resigned in 1933 about six months before federal officers started an investigation of a suspected "diploma mill."

While the investigation was carried on in many states, federal investigators said that it was concentrated in Arkansas. They said that they found that between 30 and 40 permits to practice medicine had been issued illegally in this state.

As a result of the federal investigation, eight persons in three states are under bonds following arrests.

Among the eight are Dr. Dale R. Alexander of Kansas City, who was secretary of a now defunct college in that city from which it is alleged "physicians" were graduated in a highly irregular manner.

Others who have been arrested are: William T. Gallagher, St. Louis; Ali Y. Debeh, St. Louis, who formerly practiced in Arkansas; George M. Lindsey, Kansas City; Mayrtle E. Long, chiropractor, and A. E. Krebs of Ohio, Gallagher and Debeh are accused of having "faked" Arkansas licenses.

At the last meeting of the Arkansas State Electric Board, eight licenses to practice, including that of Debeh, were revoked, following investigation of charges. However, Chancellor Frank Dodge of Pulaski Chancery Court restored Debeh's licenses on the ground that proper service on Debeh had not been obtained.

Campbell Makes New Speed Record

He Sends Bluebird Down Daytona Beach at 277 Miles Per Hour

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell roared down Daytona's golden sands in his Bluebird racer Thursday to a new world automobile speed record—275.816 miles an hour.

It was far short of the 300-mile goal he has set for the seven-ton car, but it was 4708 miles an hour swifter than the 272.106-mile average he traveled establishing the old mark here two years ago.

It was an unexpected sortie, result of a last minute decision to wait no longer for the sands to smooth out. The result left him happy, but slightly shaken from one narrow escape he had shortly after thundering through the measured mile on the return trip.

A bump there almost tore the steering wheel from his hands, sent the car careening high on the beach until the tires were just skimming the edge of the deadly soft sands. With a terrific effort the 50-year-old Englishman wrenched the wheel back, skidded to the safety of the hard sands, and was away to the end of the run and the new record.

"I haven't decided yet whether to stay and try to lift the record higher," Campbell said as he rode back down the beach in the cockpit of the 2500-horsepower monster while 50,000 spectators, lining the 1½ mile course cheered the length of the way. "I won't decide that until I have a chance to think things over."

The run, though only slightly above his old record, was as dangerous as any he has made here—and every time he has taken Bluebird to the beach during this venture something has happened.

New Victory Won by Greek Rebels

Meanwhile, War Brews on Frontiers of Bulgaria and Turkey

Copyright Associated Press

GHEVGHLELI, Yugoslavia—A desperate battle between Greek loyal troops and fanatically zealous rebels got under way in the deep snows of Eastern Macedonia Thursday night.

As the rebel sea forces apparently menaced Athens, Gen. George Kondylis sent his loyal troops smashing ahead through heavy drifts of snow at the rebels entrenched in the lines held by the British during the World War.

Artillery and aerial bombardments, almost incessant during the last two days, had prepared the way for them.

Earlier in the day the rebel fleet forced three Greek islands—Samos, Chios and Mytilene—to strike their colors, and reports reaching this frontier town said Admiral Demestichos, commanding it, wirelessly the Greek cabinet threatening to bombard Prassus, port of Athens, unless the government surrenders.

So hard pressed was Premier P. Tsaldaris and the government at Athens, another report said, that it was contemplating calling ex-King George back to his vacant throne.

Turkey, Bulgaria Threaten

GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—A serious Balkan crisis, giving rise to new fears in Geneva, flared Tuesday in the wake of the Greek revolution as Bulgaria and Turkey charged each other with war preparations.

Bulgaria, calling the situation to the attention of the League of Nations, said Turkey was concentrating troops along the Bulgarian frontier.

The Turkish delegate replied that his nation could not remain indifferent to military measures Bulgaria was taking along the Greek frontier.

Conrad Huseini, Turkey's delegate at Geneva, accused Bulgaria of taking advantage of the situation in Greece to string troops along the frontier and then, by protesting to Geneva, of trying to throw the responsibility for the situation on Turkey. He stressed that Turkey has an entente cordiale with Greece.

Two-Bale Cotton Farms Are Exempt

Bankhead Law Modified in 1935 for the Small Producer

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Small farms producing two bales or less of cotton were exempt Thursday by Secretary Wallace from provisions of the Bankhead Production Control Act.

The action was taken under regulations governing operation as had been expected. The administration previously had held it could make this exemption without seeking new legislation, fearing that if the act were reopened in congress even larger exemptions would be voted.

The exemption was granted in answer to protests from Southern senators and representatives who complained that operation of the act last year penalized small producers.

The Bankhead Act levies a tax of 50 per cent of the market value of cotton on all production above the national quota of 10,983,264 bales of 478 pounds net weight. The administration recently announced distribution of this quota among cotton states and said Thursday that county quotas will be announced within a short time.
